

ABSTRACT OF INVENTION

This new variety 12-76-71, a red seedless Muscat, is unique because of the anatomical structure of the berry. With no traces of seed development, the vascular tissue proliferates to occupy usual cavities, creating fruit of very firm flesh and texture. This change is translated to fruit retaining its form and quality over a long period of preservation in handling, storage and marketing

12-76-71